Natural remedy, Diuretic and Anti-inflammatory Pill, can continuously improve local inflammatory milieu, restore the balance of immune system, and strengthen self-healing ability to prevent the relapse of chronic prostatitis. It’s safe and convenient in comparison to other prostatitis treatments.

California City, CA -- (ReleaseWire) -- 01/25/2018 -- Chronic prostatitis/chronic pelvic pain syndrome is a complex and frustrating syndrome because of the unknown underlying pathophysiological mechanisms and the lack of appropriate and effective therapies. During the past two decades, chronic inflammation has been deeply explored as the cause of CP/CPPS. But infections appear not to be the single causative factor. So researches were performed to uncover potential risk factors in association with CP/CPPS recently.

Latest study by Yang Chen and Jie Li shows that autoimmune components might contribute to the episodic and relapsing symptoms, and the discovery of seminal plasma antigens in CP/CPPS. The results indicated that inflammatory/immune factors, hormone elements, tumor-related proteins, and a nutrition marker were significantly associated with CP/CPPS or one of its sub-types.

Cumulative evidence of a review article by María L. Breser points to the possibility that this syndrome is a consequence of dysregulated inflammation in the form of autoimmunity directed against prostate antigens. The local inflammatory milieu and the secretion of inflammatory mediators may induce neural sensitization leading to chronic pelvic pain development.

The involvement of immune mechanisms in the etiology, pathogenesis, and chronic pelvic pain development has been confirmed. However, the use of antibiotics or other chemical drugs can only stimulate some components of the immune system, and it can not replace the function of the immune system. It also can produce harmful side effects to human body and disrupt the balance of immune system. The antibiotics will completely kill bacteria as well as immune cells, permanently altering the immune function and the nervous system in the long run. Misuse of antibiotics can damage immunity, lessen resistance and weaken our defensive capacities to diseases.

The word "immunity" was first used in a medical book named "Treatise on Pestilence" by Wu Youke during the Ming dynasty, referring to "exempt from plague", which means to prevent and cure infectious diseases and strengthen the body's ability to resist viruses and harsh external conditions.
The body's own defense mechanism, the immune system, has incredible power. Proper herbal medicine can make the immune system fully and effectively operate, which can help the human body to better protect against diseases and overcome the invasion of toxins. TCM can make the environment in the immune system remain stable through autoimmune tolerance and immune regulation.

TCM enhances immunity mainly by invigorating qi and promoting blood circulation, strengthening the body resistance and rehabilitation ability, and eradicating various kinds of pathogenic factors, such as dampness heat, blood stasis etc. so that the immune function can meet the normal physiological needs of the body and prostate disease can be cured radically.
